

Summer Noise Nuisance - What you need to know

Problems with Noisy Neighbours? As anyone who has experienced an issue with noise nuisance knows, solving the problem can be stressful and complex. In this article, Solicitor Rebecca Kooyman explains exactly what constitutes a statutory noise nuisance, a common law noise nuisance and what you can do about it.

By Rebecca Kooyman

Flexible working: know your rights

Many businesses have embraced new and different ways of working, including remote and hybrid working patterns, four-day weeks and more. As a result, employees and organisations are reaping the benefits. Yet others are slower to adapt. What does employment law say about flexible working?

By Julie Temple

EHCP Needs Assessments: A Guide for Parents, Carers and Young People

A complete timeline of the 20-week process, establishing the steps you should expect an Education, Health and Care Needs Assessment to follow. Expectations, requirements and areas of contention at each stage of the process.

By Thomas Emmett

Planning ahead solicitors

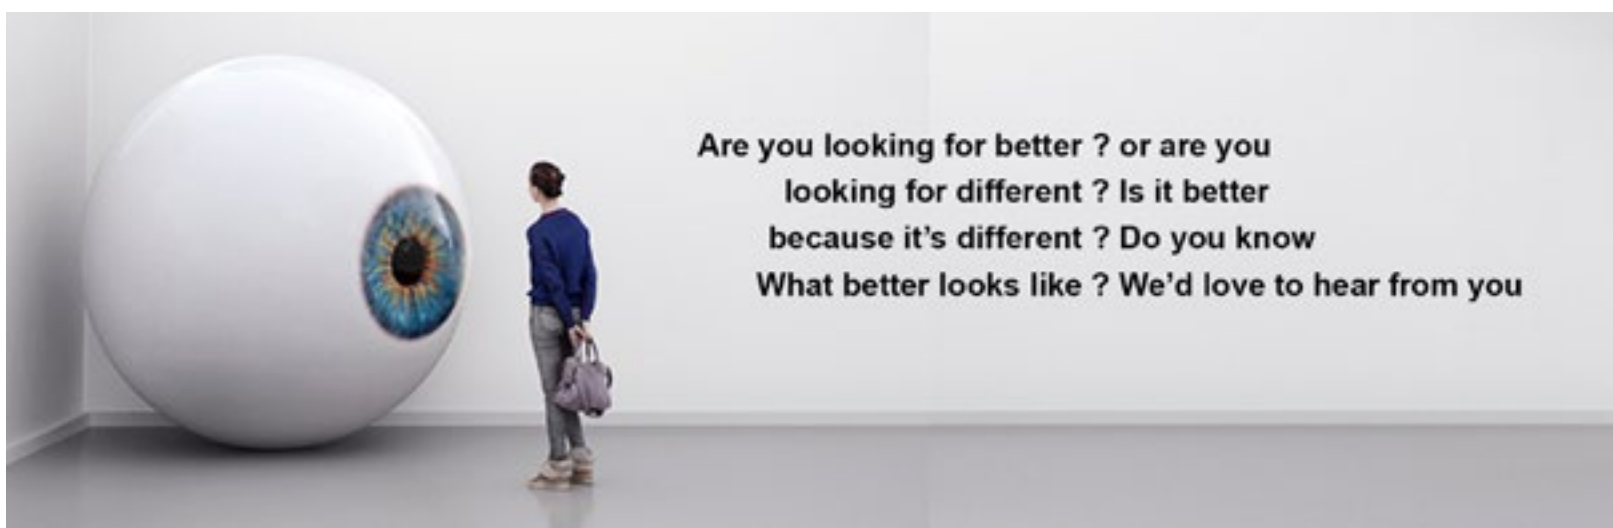

For some, the idea of planning for later life is not on our priorities list. With many of us living a lot longer these days, planning for later life really is important.

We can help with making a will, financial affairs, your property, making a LPA & planning future care.

Contact our teams here

look

For some free advice just register

In case you missed it →

- What is child-centred divorce?
- New sentencing guidelines for motoring offences
- What counts as workplace bullying?
- Handwritten wills and the case of Aretha Franklin